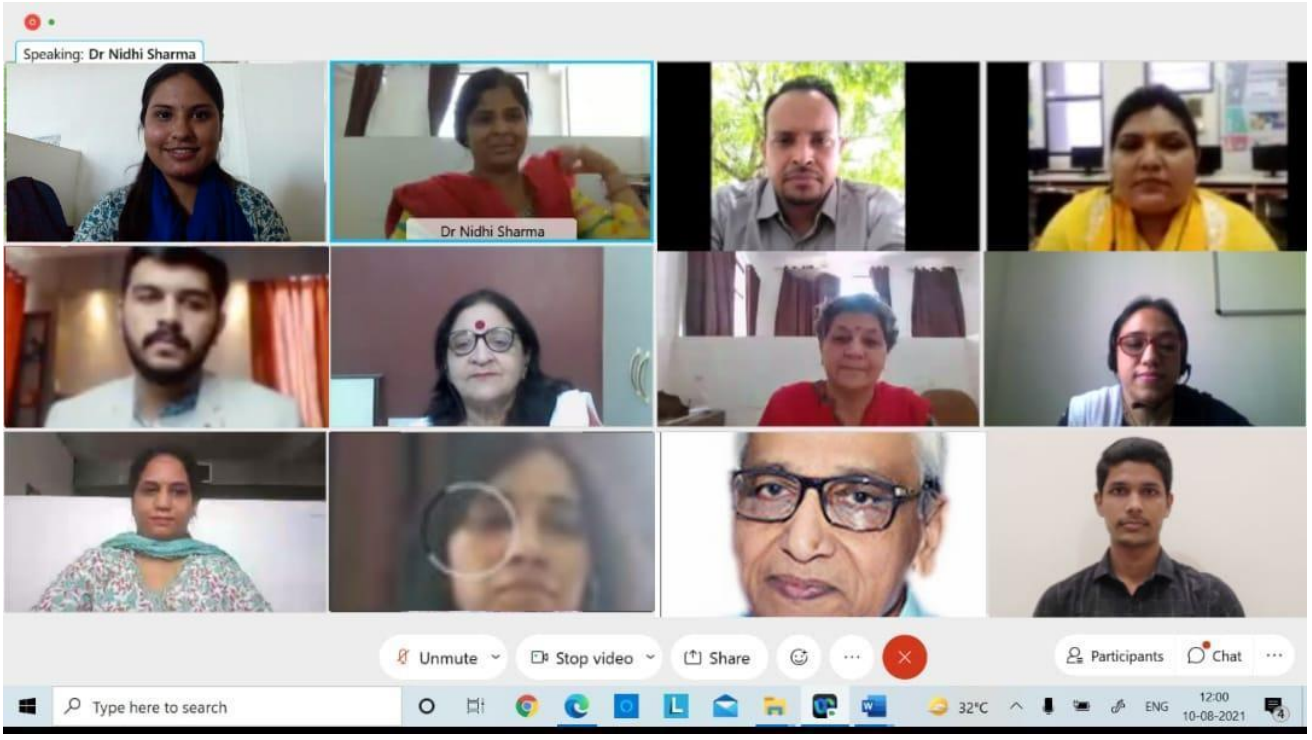
She is confident, articulate, expressive and communicative by nature. She has also conducted numerous workshops all over the country in one or more of the following areas for school teachers and other professionals, Engineering Students at IIT Jodhpur and other Engineering Colleges, MBA students, school students the teaching of ESL, Social Studies, General Awareness and ELT, as well as on topics as varied as Teaching Writing Skills, Obstacles to Learning, and Removing barriers to communication, Honing Listening Skills and Effective Strategies for Class Room Management and CCE. Ma'am has authored a book titled "Temples of Jodhpur" published in the year 2007. A first of its kind book on the temples of Jodhpur, it takes the readers on a journey into Jodhpur, its history and of course as the title suggests, the temples.

The session started with a decent welcome note and then Jyothi ma'am blessed each and everyone in the session with her graceful words on LSRW skills and in general, on life.

It was a very interactive session with great participation from the audience.

By taking a shower of the mesmerizing experience and knowledge, participants and faculty ended this session pleasantly.



Day 2: The 2nd-day session was on how to host an event, which is a major skill that every student has to learn. There are countless reasons to host an event, a meet up, a workshop, a conference. You can rally people around a cause, gather your peers and clients in one place, use it as a marketing opportunity, raise corporate or personal brand awareness, among other reasons.

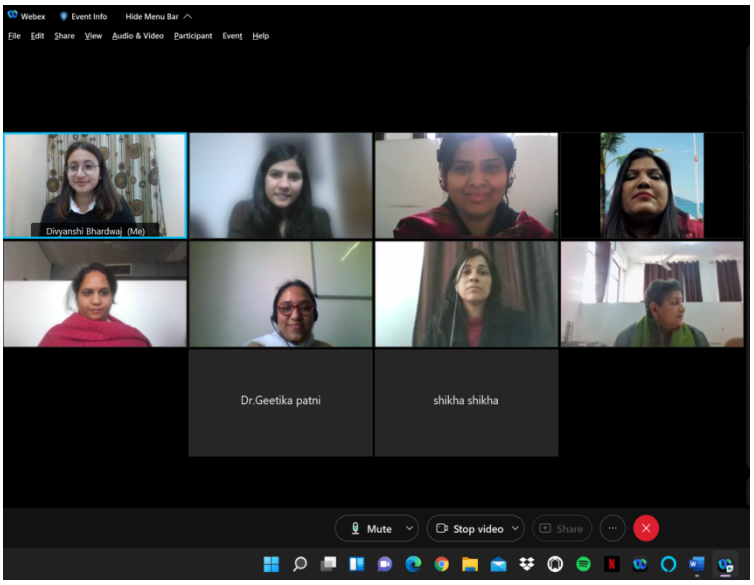
The speaker of the session was Ms Krishna Priya Harsh, who is a communication trainer and corporate event anchor. She is the founder of Talking Dots, an organization that helps students to develop their communication skills. She is currently serving as area director for area C3 at toastmasters international. The session started with a welcome note where the speaker was welcomed by beautiful poetry and a virtual bouquet.

Further, the session was preceded by a beautiful introduction of the speaker. And then the speaker explained the major five points to host an event. It was an interactive session with huge participation of the audience.

The speaker cleared the entire queries smoothly, raised by participants. In the end, a Vote of Thanks was given by Dr. Shikha.

By taking a shower of the mesmerising experience and knowledge, participants and faculty had ended this session, pleasantly.



Day 3- The third session in the winter school for students on Enhancing LSRW Skills 3rd day was on "Compounding career growth through public speaking".

Public Speaking refers to the art of communicating with a large audience.

It is a kind of oration delivered face-to-face by an individual to a group of people.

Mr. Siddharth Balasaria, Managing Director at Pristine Technologies & Industries, Jaipur, was invited to deliver a lecture on the topic. He explained the compound effect with an example of investing money. He also made students aware of career growth through public speaking using the examples of great personalities like Steve Jobs, Sundar Pichai, Narendra Modi, Mahatma Gandhi, Kushal Konwar and many more. He talked about how we should choose our career based on our Ikigai.

He talked about why public speaking skills are important in any career and how to overcome the fear of taking the initiative to improve our speaking skills.

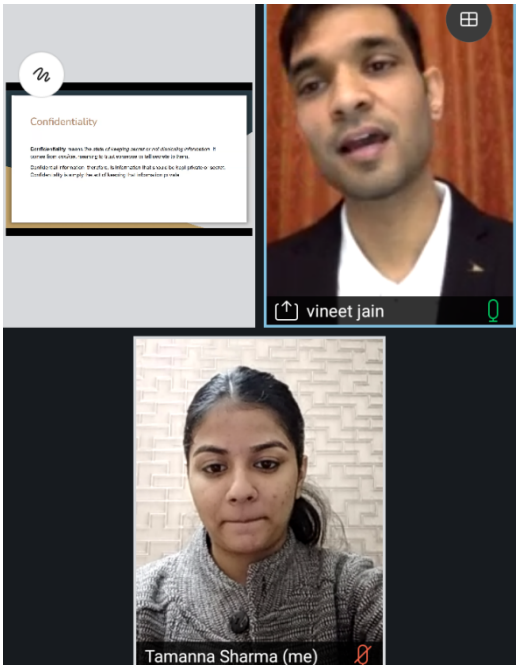
Mr. Balasaria had a general interaction with the students, in order to answer their queries regarding public speaking after his presentation. Dr. Shikha Agarwal delivered a vote of thanks.

The session ended on a pleasant note, with both the student community and the faculty members getting enlightened from sir’s rich experience and knowledge in life.

Day 4- The 4th-day session was on 'Corporate Communication' given by Mr. Vineet Jain, Head, corporate communication, SKIT, Jaipur, who was the eminent speaker for the day. Corporate communication refers to the way in which businesses and organizations communicate with internal and external audiences. By using corporate communication, an organization can explain its mission, vision, and values.

The speaker for the day - Mr. Vineet Jain has around sixteen years of experience in the field of engineering, management, consulting and education. He is the co-founder of The Happy Collar, a management consulting firm. He is also the co-founder of Sattvaj Consulting, a wellness consulting firm, and Oorjayu Naturals. He has also been recognized as one of the first few distinguished toastmasters from India, being the first from Rajasthan.

He not only described corporate communications but also inculcated his audience with corporate and virtual etiquette. During his lecture, he also made the audience perform some yoga asanas which relaxed them. It was a very lively and interactive session. The vote of thanks was given by Ms. Divya Mathur.



Day 5- The 5th-day session was on Creativity, being creative has been a defining characteristic of humans since the beginning of our time. Mankind has always been driven to create whether that be through song, art, storytelling or innovation.

The speaker of the session was Prof. C Praveen, currently the coordinator of the online programmes of the English Language Teachers' Interaction Forum (ELTIF), Kerala. Prof. Chandrashekhar Praveen, formerly Principal, Institute of Advanced Study in Education, Thrissur, Kerala. After specializing in Educational Technology, for over twenty years he had been exploring the possibility of teaching using digital tools. The website, New Curator Pedagogue and the Most Bitten Bytes series of books on Education, Teacher Education and Techno-Pedagogy are his major contributions to technology-based education.

The session started with a welcome note where the speaker was welcomed by the anchor, Tisha Gupta, with a virtual floral welcome. Then the speaker began the session with the different definitions of creativity by our great leaders.

Further in the session, he explored the topics as "How one can be creative"? The main inspiration of the session was Prof. C Praveen's presentation which was so creatively done that it engaged the audience till the end. Furthermore, session proceeded with tasks given to the audience where they had to respond to different images swiftly. Throughout the session Prof. kept asking the questions to just keep the mind of the audience immersed in the session.

After thanking the speaker for such a wonderful session, he was honoured with a virtual memento. The speaker gave perceptive and valuable answers to everyone. In the end, Dr Anupriya Singh thanked the professor by proposing the vote of thanks.

Day 6- The students were asked to complete an assignment which was based on what they learned in the past sessions.

The session commenced with a welcome note where the speaker was welcomed by a virtual bouquet presented by the technical team. The speaker started the session by diving into the general principles of writing.

Further, the session proceeded by exploring the topics such as "write to express, not to impress" with emphasis on the use of clear and concise words to express oneself. "Keep it short and sweet" was another important principle that was explored in-depth with the use of illustrative examples.

The speaker proceeded to explain the purpose of writing and how writing to inform involves a practical approach. Furthermore, it was explained how essential it is to master the basic aspects of scientific writing, which are none other than accuracy, clarity and brevity. The speaker broke down the three stages of writing, that is, prewriting, writing and reviewing in-depth and cleared any queries raised by the participants.

The session ended on a high note with each participant expressing their gratitude to the expert speaker of the day, Dr. Keshav Nath for his valuable insight and the vote of thanks was delivered by Dr. Nidhi Sharma.

Day 8- The 8th-day session was on Creative Writing, which is a combination of imagination and memories, written in such an expressive way to communicate effectively.

The speaker of the session was Ms. Manasvini Rai, a writer, poet, blogger and doctoral researcher in English Literature at MNIT Jaipur. Her book was a part of the 2021 Cambridge Scholars volume on Climate Fiction but and poetry has been featured in many places across the globe. Even her blogs on creative and scholarly themes are also available on the internet.

The session started with a welcome note where the speaker was welcomed by beautiful poetry and a virtual bouquet. The speaker started the session with the Power of Poetry.

Further, the session proceeded by exploring the topic “what creative writing is?”

Free writing was also explained and simultaneously participants were asked to give examples of free writing, where each individual participated enthusiastically.

Furthermore, session proceeded with tasks given to the audience where they had to respond to different images swiftly. Lastly, the speaker gave examples of Ekphrastic writing and explained the topic well.

The speaker cleared the queries raised by the participants. In the end, each participant expressed their thankfulness to the speaker personally for an amazing session and the vote of thanks was delivered by Dr. Geetika Patni.

Day 9- On day-9, Dr. Aditi Dev Deol, Assistant Professor at Amity School of Languages gave an insightful lecture on the topic Fruitful Reading and Honing Reading Skills. Shagun Agarwal, a student of SKIT, moderated the event for that day. The speaker was welcomed with a virtual bouquet by the technical team.

The motive of the winter school was to enhance the listening, speaking, reading and writing skills of students. On Day 9, it was specifically about honing reading skills, equipping students with effective reading techniques and encouraging students to develop reading habits.

Dr. Aditi talked about the purpose of fruitful reading, gave a brief about note-making and about how to take episodic notes. She discussed reading techniques like pre-reading, paraphrasing, summarizing, skeleton reading, surveying and previewing. She gave holistic reading strategies like SQ3R (Survey Question Read Recite Review) and KWL (Know What Learn).

Many students attended the event and their queries were duly answered by the expert. Adding to that, students also expressed their gratitude to the speaker for a helpful and strategic session.

Dr. Lalit Gehlot, Associate Professor in the English department, delivered the formal vote of thanks to Dr. Aditi.

An e-memento was presented to Dr. Aditi Deol. A group photograph of all the panelists was captured.

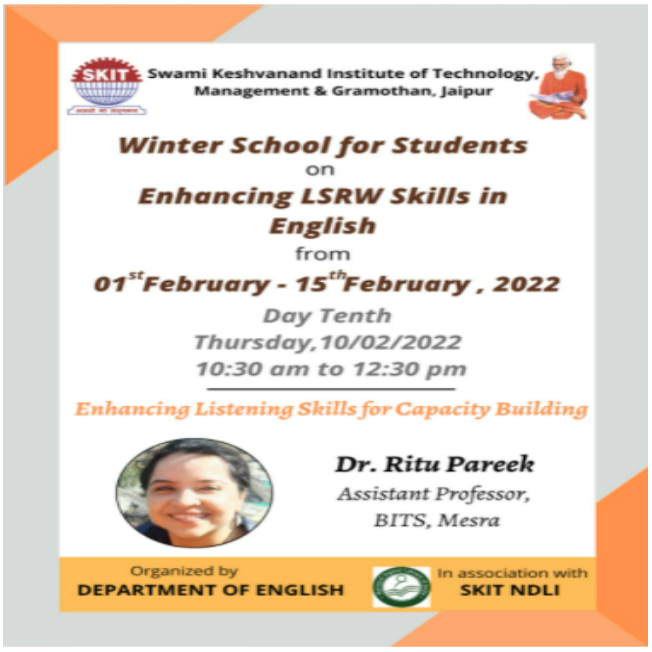
Day 10- The tenth day of the LSRW winter school for students focused on the concept of listening skills for capacity building.

The speaker of the session was Dr. Ritu Pareek, she is an Assistant Professor in English at the Birla Institute of Technology-Mesra- Jaipur campus. She has been working in the field of academics for the last fourteen years. Dr Pareek completed her PhD on the topic "Questioning of Patriarchal Narration and Female Subjugation in Angela Carter's Short Stories" from Malaviya National Institute of Technology, Jaipur, in 2014. She has published articles on Contemporary British Fiction and English Language Teaching in reputed journals and has presented research papers at many international conferences including the University of London, UK, and at many national conferences at universities in India.

The session started with a welcome note where the speaker was welcomed by beautiful poetry and a virtual bouquet. The speaker started the session with the critical significance of listening in every aspect of our lives and how accurately received messages can create confidence and comfort in our minds.

Further, the session proceeded by exploring the topics as “what are the different ways of listening” and how listening is one of the most important skills for a good communication

The speaker cleared the entire queries smoothly, raised by participants. In the end, Dr Nidhi Sharma delivered the formal vote of thanks for such an informative session.



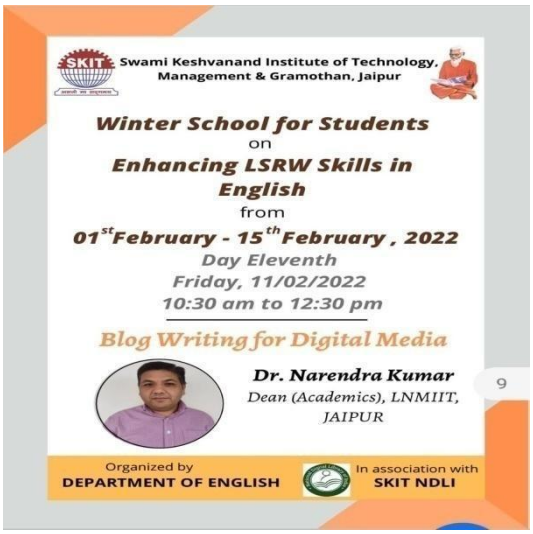
Day 11- Today everything is conducted in a digital medium and the demand for digital content increases rapidly and its relevance is undeniable, both for the reader and the writer. Understanding the importance of digital content, the 11th session of the Winter School was entitled Blog Writing for Digital Media with Dr. Narendra Kumar as the keynote speaker for the day.

Dr. Narendra Kumar has been teaching courses in English Language, Literature, Film Adaptations and Contemporary Theory at Undergraduate and Postgraduate levels since 2014. He did his PhD on Caryl Phillips with specific reference to postcolonial problems of Race, Ethnicity and History. He is currently serving as Associate Professor in English and Dean, Academic (In-charge) at the LNM Institute of Information Technology, Jaipur.

A blog is the most common type of digital content present in the market and every student should essentially incorporate the skill of blogging. Blogging has a separate set of advantages in every technical and non-technical field.

Dr. Narendra Kumar was welcomed with the virtual floral arrangement by the technical team. He started his lecture by explaining the meaning and importance of blogging. He discussed the categorization and the scope of blogging. He concluded the lecture with a piece of advice for the students that they should start blogging as soon as possible. He delivered his lecture in a precise and interactive manner. The remaining doubts were resolved by him in the question-and-answer session just after the lecture. He was acknowledged with a virtual memento as a token of gratitude on behalf of the institute in the end.

The session received positive feedback from the audience.



Day 12- The twelfth day of the LSRW winter school for students focused on the concept of listening skills.

The speaker of the session was Ms. Khusshbo Chokhaani, who is a self-expression coach, trainer, Trinity College London drama educator and storyteller. She empowers teenagers, children, teachers in self-expression techniques with the mindset to succeed and unlock their true potential using stories and theatre techniques. She has trained more than 1050 children and teachers. She is the Founder and Director of Not Just Tales

The session started with a welcome note where the speaker was welcomed by beautiful poetry and a virtual bouquet. The speaker started the session by emphasizing the significance of listening in our lives. Further, the session proceeded by exploring the topics as "how is listening different from hearing". Different kinds of activities were also performed by our speaker which taught us more about the importance of listening skills.

The speaker cleared the queries raised by participants. In the end, Dr Krishna Sharma delivered a formal vote of thanks for such an informative session.

Day 13- The students had to complete an assignment which was based on the sessions of the week.

Memories of Rain.

Q1. Write a blog post about your most memorable experience with rain. (minimum 100 words) *

This year I had a very pleasant and memorable experience of a rainy day. This was the day when my school had re-opened after the summer vacation. The days were unbearably hot sultry. Outside it was really scorching heat. I was going to my school in the morning by a rickshaw. It was quite hot and uncomfortable. Soon the sky became overcast with big and dusky clouds. There were thunders followed by flash of lighting. It grew dark soon and temperature suddenly dropped down low. Then it began to rain heavily. The clouds thundered and poured water. People were drenched but happy and so was I. I protected my school bag and then ran into a nearby fast food shop for shelter. Some passersby had already taken shelter there. It was raining continuously for one hour. That was memorable day for me.

Read the passage given below and then answer the questions given below the passage.

Pakistani officials have threatened to use nuclear weapons should India invade, after India's new army chief admitted to clandestine military plans for attacking its neighbour in the event of a crisis.

Three officials in Islamabad have revealed that Pakistan would take all necessary measures to defend itself should India ever put into action long-rumoured "cold-start" plans to attack Pakistani territory following an event such as a major terrorist incident. "If ever our national security is threatened by advancing foreign forces, Pakistan will use all of its weapons — and I mean all of our weapons — to defend our country," one of the officials said. The comments came two weeks after Bipin Rawat, the newly appointed head of the Indian army, acknowledged the existence of "cold start".

The cold-start strategy is designed to enable an instant response to crisis including attacks by militants launched from Pakistani soil, and would mean Indian troops entering Pakistan and occupying positions along the border before Islamabad could prepare or the international community could intervene. The arms build-up in the region has raised the nuclear stakes.

According to a 2010 diplomatic cable from the then US ambassador in New Delhi released by WikiLeaks, the plan is designed to enable a rapid response to a crisis without threatening the survival of the Pakistani state — or triggering a nuclear response. Tensions between the two nuclear-armed neighbours have remained high since last September's attack on the Indian army base at Uri in Kashmir, which killed 19 soldiers.

India responded with what it called "surgical strikes" across the de facto border with Pakistan. Since then there have been more minor assaults. India's National Investigation Agency on Thursday said the militant Islamist group Lashkar-e-Taiba was to blame for the Uri attack.

This month, meanwhile, Pakistan carried out its first test of a nuclear-capable missile from a submarine. Uri attack has

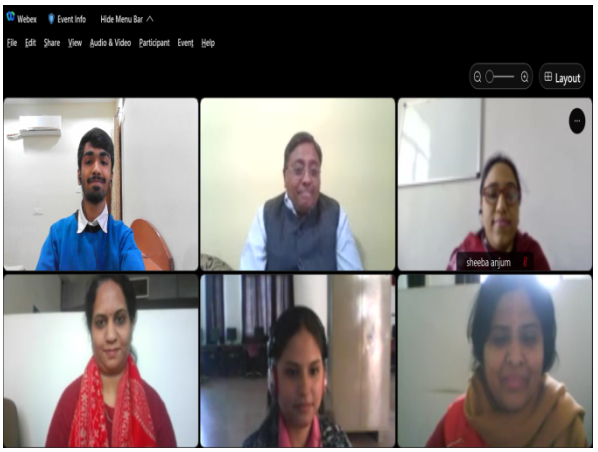
Day 14- The 14th-day session was on ‘Reading for competitive Exams’ which was delivered by Mr. Kapil Dixit.

Reading is not just about picking an article and going through it. It is a cognitive, multifaceted process wherein you recognise the word and comprehend it to understand its meaning. Reading is an essential aspect of learning and has multiple benefits attached to it. Reading is important because it makes you more empathetic, knowledgeable and stimulates your imagination.

Mr. Kapil Dixit, who was the eminent speaker for the day, has been associated with T.I.M.E. Jaipur since 2003. He is a graduate in Science and Law with a Post Graduate Diploma in Management. He is an expert in the areas of reading comprehension and critical reasoning for various aptitude tests and competitive exams and has a rich experience of nearly 2 decades. He mentors students for GDs and PIs for various B-Schools, Banks and Companies. He has been taking seminars on time management, leadership, motivational talks, career counselling, careers after XII and Careers after Graduation in various schools and colleges. He counsels students on various options based on the understanding of students’ interests and inclinations.

Mr. Dixit conducted the session gracefully and interactively. He started the session by saying ‘Learning is never stopped’. He not only told the audience how to read for exams but also how to start reading in the first place. Throughout the session, there were questions from both ends. As the session came to an end everyone got the answers to what they were looking for.



Day 15- The 15th-day session was on 'How to speak well' which was delivered by Mrs. Renu Bhandari, Director and Trainer of Speakwel Institute of English Language, Jaipur.

To speak and to speak well are two different things. The way we speak reveals quite a lot about us to the listeners. Anyone paying attention to our voice and tone of speech can understand our emotional state, our level of confidence, the command we have over the language and also our geographical roots through the accent we may have acquired.
We can be made or marred by what we say, so the way we speak is very important in our lives.

Mrs. Renu Bhandari, who was the eminent speaker for the day started her career as the chief copywriter for a leading advertising agency in Chandigarh. After moving to Kanpur, she ventured into teaching which had always been her passion and became the in-charge of a well-known school. In November 1985, she started 'Speakwel Institute of English language' in Kanpur. In 1996, she started Speakwel Institute of English language, Jaipur and was a pioneer in the city to take this kind of initiative.

She began the session by discussing different words and the common root of words that might appear very different from one another at the first glance. She gave practical tips to the students about how they could improve their speaking skills and insisted that practice was the key to success. She not only told the audience how to speak well but also how to read well and be a good listener. She also interacted with the audience by assigning random topics to them and asking them to keep on speaking about anything and everything.

In the end, she ended her lecture by saying “Cut the noise around you and have a tunnel vision!”
The fifteen-day winter school came to an end with words of thankfulness delivered by the head of the department of English, Dr. Neha Purohit.
